Architecture

Architecture is the art and science of design and construction of buildings, structures, and objects that offer shelter or accompaniment to life. It is both the process and the product of planning, designing, and constructing buildings or other structures.

Architectural works, in the broadest sense, refers to any man-made objects, including monuments and structures, but excluding trees and shrubs.

Design

Design is the process of defining the form and function of a system, product, or service. It involves the creation of a plan or blueprint for the development of a system, product, or service.

Construction

Construction is the process of creating a building, structure, or object by combining materials, labor, and equipment. It involves the physical assembly of components to create a finished product.

Planning

Planning is the process of determining the goals and objectives of a system, product, or service. It involves the creation of a plan or blueprint for the development of a system, product, or service.

Engineering

Engineering is the application of scientific and mathematical principles to the design, development, and operation of systems, products, and services. It involves the use of engineering knowledge to solve problems and create solutions.

Technology

Technology is the application of scientific and mathematical principles to the design, development, and operation of systems, products, and services. It involves the use of engineering knowledge to solve problems and create solutions.
